ATTORNEYS ROW IN 'FOX' JURY SELECTION OIL EXPLOSION FIRES HUMBLE OIL PLANT

The CORE

With all their plans guarded by secrecy, Philip T. Dodge, 76-year-old millionaire, and Miss Lilla Sutherland, forty-five, also wealthy, were married in New York.

The administration suffered another defeat in the senate yesterday when a joint congressional investigation of the S-4 submarine disaster was ordered by the vote of 51 to 32.

Eighty per cent of all the airplane fatalities in the navy since 1921 were due to the human rather than mechanical element, the navy department announced in a carefully prepared analysis of the flying records of personnel and planes.

Thomas J. Davies, chairman of the Pure Oil Company and brother of Vice-President Charles G. Davies, will be one of the chief witnesses before the senate public lands committee when it resumes its investigation of the Teapot Dome naval oil scandal next week.

John Spencer Bassett, 51, secretary of the American Historical Association, and a nationally known authority on American history, was fatally injured when struck by a street car in Washington, D. C. yesterday. He was author of "A Short History of the United States," "Life of Andrew Jackson," "Our War With Germany" and many other works.

A resolution calling upon Secretary Mellon to furnish the senate with a list of tax refunds of $25,000 and over, arranged by states and the names of individuals in alphabetical order, for the last three years, was passed yesterday.

A criminal gang, so secret that even many of its members are unknown to other members, is now believed responsible for the bombing of the homes of City Comptroller Charles F. Morris and Dr. William Reid, a precinct committeeman of Chicago.

State Educator Urges Training

MARTINEZ, Jan. 27.—Placing his stamp of unqualified approval on the work already undertaken in the Martinez school department along the lines of vocational training, J. C. Bewick, state supervisor of trade and industrial education, spent a day and a half in a close investigation of the situation here, urgently recommending that the training of boys and girls along lines which will fit them to meet the practical requirements of life when they finish school be still further extended in this community.

VIOLATED GAME LAWS
A. Madero, of El Cerrito, was arrested in Crockett by Lee Atkinson, deputy game warden, on a charge of killing game out of season and given a fine of $25 or 25 days in jail. Not paying the fine Madero was committed to jail.

IN THE GOOD OLD SUMMER TIME!

Those who have experienced difficulty in the past in getting either price or service on their winter coal supply realize the wisdom of buying in the summer time when prices are at their lowest, according to John Ecklund, of the Pacific Feed & Fuel Company, 401 Sixteenth Street. In the summer, says Ecklund, dealers are better equipped to give prompt service, and prices are at the lowest.

21 MISSING AND ONE KILLED IN CONFLAGRATION

MCCANEY, Texas, Jan. 27.—Twenty-one men were missing tonight when officials of the Humble Oil and Refining company completed a hurried check of the workmen, who were in the company's topping plant this afternoon, when a nearby tank of gasoline exploded, firing eleven other tanks and developing the plant in a sheet of roaring flames.

Only one man is known to have perished. He was working on top of the tank when it exploded. His body was hurled high into the air and workmen outside the danger zone said they saw the body fall back into the flaming oil. One hundred men are ordinarily employed at the plant and it was at first feared that all had been trapped when the blazing tower of oil fell over the entire plant. But some escaped and those that did emerge from the wall of flame with their clothes burned from their backs and their faces and bodies badly burned.

The huge drum-like tank exploded shortly before 5 o'clock at the offices of the Humble company's plant officials said they heard two distinct explosions.

MAN FREED ON KILLING CHARGE

Angelo Serbo, resident of Crockett for several years, who "shot it out" in Benicia two weeks ago with his former friend Jesus Castaneda, was freed and the murder charge against him dismissed at the conclusion of the preliminary hearing in the Benicia Justice Court yesterday.

Testimony at the preliminary showed that Castaneda, whom Serbo met in a Benicia pool hall, was the aggressor and upon showing that he shot in self defense, Serbo was cleared of the slaying charge on motion of the District Attorney.

Thieves Pilfer Constable's Store

MARTINEZ, Jan. 27.—Forcing an entrance through a room occupied as an office by Constable Harry Stow, thieves early this morning burglarized the Walnut Creek store and pool room of Nottingham & Grimes and stole tobacco valued at $90. Stow's office is at the rear of the store, where the burglars operated unseen with a bar, with which they forced the lock of the door.

The burglary was committed at a time when Stow and other officers were arresting a man on the Tunnel highway for the alleged theft of chickens. The time of the burglary is fixed as 2 a. m., as several Walnut Creek citizens reported that they saw two men at that hour hurrying from the vicinity of the store with packages under their arms.

Lindy Lands In Bogota On Trip Of Good Will

BOGOTA, Colombia, Jan. 26.—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh completed the second leg of his good-will flight in South America at three o'clock this afternoon when he brought his famous plane, the Spirit of St. Louis down to a safe landing on Madrid field, on the outskirts of this city.

The flying colonel brought his machine down on a field which swarmed with thousands of spectators who had waited at the field since before noon to witness his landing. The crowds, however, were fairly well held back by the large forces of troops and police who formed a cordon about the famous plane as soon as it came to a stop, although a few of the more elusive evaded the police lines for a close-up view of the plane.

Lindbergh was met on the landing field by a number of high Colombian government officials, the American minister to Colombia, Samuel H. Piles, and representatives of the American colony in Bogota.

COWELL ASKS SUIT RETRIAL

MARTINEZ, Jan. 26.—Loser in a squirrel den suit instituted by the county, the Cowell Cement Company will make a motion for a new trial before Superior Judge A. B. McKenzie and in the event of failure to secure favorable action will appeal to the Appellate Court from a judgment of $1500 given against the firm. A. F. Bray, counsel for the concern, announced today. The new trial motion is to be presented as soon as findings in the case have been filed. Bray declared.

Importance of the appeal lies in the fact that it will be one of the few cases to go to higher courts in which the right of counties to do squirrel eradication work on private property and methods of procedure in doing the work will be an issue.

Claiming that the Cowell Company had failed to vigorously pursue rodent eradication on its 3390 acre tract at Brentwood, County Horticultural Commissioner V. G. Stevens put county crews at work last summer. District Attorney A. B. Tinning then instituted suit to recover the costs to the county and establish the judgment as a lien against the land.

BREAKING OF PINOLE "JAM" IS CONSIDERED

Breaking of the traffic barrier at the Pinole "bottle-neck," one of the major considerations for his year by the California Highway Commission, was given by Bert Meek, director of the Bureau of Public Works, when he made a thorough inspection of the situation in Pinole.

Meek said that he has sent letters to the board of supervisors of Contra Costa, San Joaquin and Alameda counties, requesting them to initiate and cooperate in a survey to determine the need and feasibility of construction of a new highway extending through Contra Costa from the value to the bay district.

In his letter, one of which is addressed to County Clerk J. H. Wells as clerk of the board of supervisors, Meek says that the new highway is "not only a local but a necessary part of a joint highway district to finance construction. The state, it was indicated, will contribute financially to the road's construction."

The survey would take into consideration traffic on the Tunnel Highway, which Contra Costa has long urged be taken into the state highway system, a proposal that is to be pushed before the 1929 legislature. If the state contributes to the construction of a new highway extending across Contra Costa it was said it might effect the state's stand on the Tunnel Highway proposal.

It has been suggested that the new short cut highway be built along the route of the present Marsh Creek road and a second route even further south has been proposed. An initial survey for the (Continued on Page 5)

According to the defense, the jury is complete. According to the state it is still open to challenge. So the situation stood when Judge J. J. Trabucco adjourned court this afternoon.

The jury, complete or not, was not sworn but was admonished to go to its way and avoid discussion of the Hickman case. Three women and nine men were in the box. For the first time since the trial started suspense gripped the courtroom at 5 o'clock, the hour of adjournment approached.

The jury's preliminary challenge to the state passed. The defense pushed also to the general surprise. After (Continued on Page Eight)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The appointment of Gustavo Querrero, of Salvador, as president of the Committee on Public International Law at the Pan-American Congress in Havana, meets the approval of the United States, it was declared at the State department today.

While Querrero has in the past frequently made bitter attacks on the United States policy in Central America and charged violation of international law, it was declared that there is no justification for the assumption that he will do so in the committee. It was pointed out that Querrero's nomination was seconded by the American delegation and that officials must have satisfied themselves of his friendly attitude in advance.

ACCEPTING "GENIAL AL"

The high-brow democratic leaders seem inclined now to make the best of what they consider a bad bargain and accept "A" Smith as the probable democratic presidential nominee. Some of them are still entertaining the hope that they can pluck out of the ether a candidate who can be substituted at the last moment for "Genial Al." But they are doing this now in dark corners rather than in the market places.

Following the custom of all of us when we make a bad bargain, they have begun with line and rule to figure out not only Smith's nomination, but his election. Michelson of the New York World, a political expert and a clever one, has already elected "Al Smith." True, he had to carry the Solid South, all the border states and reach into Montana and Nevada to accomplish his purpose, but he has done it making sunshine out of cucumbers.

For the information of the republicans at large it can be said these democratic claims should only be taken with a considerable sum of seasoning. "Al" Smith will carry the Solid South, Florida and North Carolina, possibly may go republican, but withal, the republican nominee whether he is Hoover, Lowden, Dawes, Hughes or Curtis, or any one else whom the convention may nominate will be elected.

THE WOMAN'S BEAUTY BILL

The Woman's Bureau of the Federal Department of Labor finds that the annual cost of preserving beauty to the American woman exceeds the war debts owed by a half dozen countries to the United States. The female of the species is far more costly than the male in the amounts paid out to maintain their beauty which is the pride of the American woman and her male relatives. The statisticians find that five millions of dollars a day is paid in fees in the beauty parlors of the country and that the total cost of eight and eighty runs to one and three-quarters billions of dollars every year. "The vanity of the American woman," says the report, "is making millions." The real money in beauty culture is to be made by owning a shop or by manufacturing cosmetics.

Scoffers may howl in rage over the expenditure of nearly $2,000,000 each year for the beautification of wives, sisters and sweethearts but most of the males with good eyesight will hold to the opinion that the results justify the cost.

A lot of fellows who take pride in the fact that their word is as good as their bond will not hesitate to lie to their wives whenever it is absolutely necessary.

There can't be much the matter with Kansas now. She has 80 millionaires.—Milwaukee Journal.

Will Otto Kahn's Daughter Turn Writer Like Fiance?

Sue, dear:

In view of the late lamented marriage of the young Cornelius Vanderbilt, Margaret Kahn had her nerve along with her when she promised to marry John Barry Ryan.

For John Barry is another of these sons of rich men who have smelled printer's ink, and have forever after become its slave. Right now he is a reporter on the Newark Ledger, and any one who has ever been a reporter on the Newark Ledger sticks in the newspaper business. That training school for New York members of the Fourth Estate over the river has that reputation.

IN GAME FOR LIFE
Of course, Margaret probably has taken into consideration the consequences of marrying a budding young newspaper man, especially one who has plenty of money at his command, and who goes in for reporting just for the fun of doing it. A man who was a reporter because he had to earn his living some way might not be caught so irrevocably in the toils of his profession, but one who has a grandfather like Thomas P. Ryan, who piled up even more millions than Margaret's own father, Otto Kahn, has to his credit, will never give up the ship, not so long as there is a news story breaking.

And what will that mean to Margaret? Ask Rachel Littleton Vanderbilt.

She told the court at Reno all about it when she got her divorce from Cornelius a few weeks ago. She told the court all about those nights when young Cornelius worked through the wee small hours instead of dancing with her at some society function. She did not like the idea of being married to a night worker. Also, she thought that her husband had devoted entirely too much time and money to his ill fated newspaper ventures.

HAD WARNING
Oh yes, Margaret could have had plenty of warning from Rachel. She had wanted to take it.

But Margaret Kahn might even get the smell of printer's ink into her own nostrils, and might be perfectly willing to let her John start papers or work for those that are already started. There may even be lurking in the back of her head an ambition to write. Elinor Mackay had it, and set out to tell the world just why she was disgusted with society life.

So Margaret may take it into her head to go in for society confessions, with her future husband her best pal and severest critic. These Kahns are likely to develop talent for anything but idleness at the slightest urge. Look at Margaret's young brother, Roger Wolf Kahn and his jazz band.

All we can do is wish the two luck, and hope that printer's ink does not interfere with their marital bliss.

A 'Cocktail Jacket' Solves The Evening Gown Problem

I live in a small town in Jersey and I have been invited to spend a week in the city with a girl friend whom I met in school. I really need a dinner dress and an evening dress, but I cannot afford both. What would you advise? What color would you suggest? I want a color that will remain in style throughout the summer. I expect to wear this dress for a long time. BETH B.

I believe you will find the dress with separate jacket, sometimes called a restaurant coat, suited to your needs. Such a costume will carry you not only through the afternoon and dinner hours but the evening as well, and you will be appropriately dressed for any occasion. It isn't nearly as complicated as it sounds for it consists of a dress and a separate jacket, and if you are clever with your needle you can make it yourself.

The separate jacket may be of the same material as the dress, which in truth, is the lower part of an evening frock. The upper part of the dress may be made of lace or one of the metal-threaded fabrics now so smart. Later in the day, when the little jacket is removed, you have a charming evening dress.

A very practical and thoroughly charming outfit of this type is in all black, either satin or silk crepe, with a sleeveless bodice of black lace and an ornament of rhinestones.

In choosing the color of your dress think of your complexion first. Colors should be chosen not smart, but because they are becoming.

Since becoming color, is after all, a matter of individuality, definite rules cannot be laid down. Here are a few general rules that may be of interest to many women:

Persons with florid complexions should avoid brilliant green, and bright red and blue-green. A brunette with a vivid complexion, however, may successfully wear a rich yellow red or a soft gray. She often looks best in red-violets or blues.

Pale brunettes usually find rose and blue-green becoming. Those with green hair or in the face, the complementary red that is in the skin. Vivid colors tend to make the skin appear pale and are becoming to only those who have what is termed medium coloring.

Purples are unbecoming to a pale complexion.

Mrs. N. There are certain colors which will soften the shades of gray hair. Black is not always kind to the gray haired woman. Her most becoming colors are those which were becoming to her in youth—softened of course. Henna, soft rose, steel blue, and beige—these are the colors especially suited to the mature woman. Pongee shades, yellow and tan, are as a rule, unbecoming to the woman with gray hair.

AND THE WORST IS YET TO COME

Dear Patricia Lee:
My wife is a very poor manager. We argue all the time about money, so that I hate to go home at night. I hate to see my home the way it is getting to be, but there is nothing I can do. I can't earn any more money and feel that if she was careful of what I give her that everything would be O. K. We never used to quarrel and money is the only thing that starts us fighting now.—HENRY J.

The matter of money enters into the relationship existing between a man and wife so often that lack of money seems to present one of the greatest of marriage problems.

It is all very well to say that love will thrive on "bread and cheese and kisses," or whatever the expression is that was so popular once upon a time, but there is something equally as true about love flying out of the window when poverty appears at the door.

Isn't the actual lack of money in many cases, but failure of the wife or the husband to adjust themselves to the income that the man, as the true wage-earner, can produce?

When a woman is extravagant or does not think it worth while to practice strictest economy in order to keep her end of the household functioning properly, she is encouraging love to fly out of the window. When a man will not deny himself luxuries, he has been used to in his unmarried life, he is helping love to find a new lodging.

Sometimes, in fact, many times, the failure to meet the situation together and each honestly agreeing to do his share in helping the family budget is the first step in what ultimately leads to unhappiness. Petty arguments over money grow into horrible cold, unyielding discussions where, in love, does not seem to have a place, and yet apparently each one feels the burden of carrying on under the difficulty of too little money and would like to be rid of the responsibility.

Facing the responsibility and bearing and sharing it equally is the only way that what folks call poverty and love can be harbored in the same house.

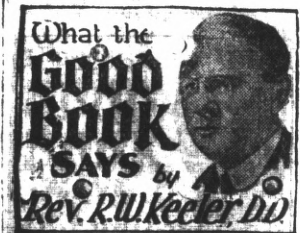

Dear Patricia Lee:

We have been married four years and have one little girl. My husband does not make very much money, but I know that we could get along if only he would give up some of his extravagant ways. He does not think that he is extravagant, because he says every man must smoke and have his clothes pressed by a tailor and his shoes shined and all that sort of thing. I know that he has always been used to it, but if I am willing to save every cent I can to keep us from going in debt, don't you think he should give something too?—LUCILE.

I certainly do think he should be willing to give up something just as well as you do, and if he is the right sort of man I know that you will be able to convince him that your happy home is worth the little sacrifices that he makes. Get him to go into the thing as a little game. It is surprising how readily some problems seem to vanish into thin air if you tackle them with a sense of humor instead of seriousness.

While walking down the Main street one afternoon we passed a lady with a veil on. My youngest turned and said: "Mother, what has that lady got that screen on her face for?" MRS. J. M. WHALEY.

Well, it is up to you, then, to do the managing for a while, but don't be too high hat about it. Try to make your wife see what you can do in the spending of the household money for a week or so. It will be hard on you to do the shopping, but make out lists of things that she would buy and the price she should pay for them and see if she won't cooperate in the spirit that I hope you will show her in suggesting the arrangement.

BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN BY ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1927, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.
"BEWARE OF MARRIED MEN," starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros. picture.

SYNOPSIS
Myra Martin, secretary to Leonard Gilbert, a divorce lawyer to whom she is engaged, believes that her sister, Helene, is infatuated with Huntley Sheldon, whose wife, Nina, is divorcing him. Disguised, Myra goes to Sheldon's hunting lodge to force him to release Helene. He pretends a heart attack and Myra must remain there all night. Helene escapes with Ralph Naylor. Then, through a misunderstanding Myra, Helene and Gilbert are all forced to hide in Sheldon's apartment while Nina searches for a co-responder. The sisters escape and Nina, baffled, decides to return to her husband. After a frantic two days Myra explains her story to Helene.

"Myra how can I ever thank you enough. Just think what might have happened. O, Myra, and I'm so happy, now. And I wouldn't give Ralph up for a thousand Huntley Sheldons. You're the dearest, sister in the world."

"I dare say I am," Myra returned dryly. "But the worst is yet to come. I told Sheldon what I thought of him, and he made me understand that he had kept me there that night for a purpose—the purpose being to let him alone, and if I didn't he would say that I had spent the night in his lodge. And then, just as I was about to go, before anyone had seen me, who should arrive but Mrs. Sheldon. And, O, what a scene!" Myra shuddered at the remembrance. "You noticed that she said something about knowing me better and then remembering who it was I looked like?" Helene nodded. "Well, that was where she had seen me before, but she couldn't place me—and I don't ever want to see her again, for fear she does." "Didn't you feel frightened when she came into your office?" "Of course. And you know the evening you came back home—why, that was only last night, but it seems months ago. But you asked me whether Sheldon had been here or not? Well, he had been here, but I was afraid to tell you. He wanted to let his warning sink in, and also to tell me that his wife would probably recognize me if she came into the office very often."

"Oh, I see. Well, I knew he had been here, for certain. But you didn't seem to want to talk about it, and I couldn't say much then." "How did you know that?" Myra asked.

"Well, I walked over to the table and I saw the stubs of his cigarettes with his initials on them."

"Oh, no, it was quite plain. And that's what gave me the idea he was after you. Isn't that funny? I was just as worried about you as you had been about me. At first I thought that perhaps he might have got some hold over you on account of something I had done, and then I came to the conclusion that you had fallen for him, just as I had, and my first idea was to go to him and try to force him to give you up. So as soon as I got up this morning I phoned him. But how did you happen to go there?"

"I knew you had phoned him." "But how?"

"Why Mrs. Sheldon arrived at the office looking for Leonard, and she was all excited, and wanted to tell someone about it, so she picked on me. She said that Bots-

Those Nicaraguan rebels are going to find out what it really means to have to "tell it to the marines."

President Coolidge sprained his wrist shaking hands with 3,300 people on New Year's Day. He'll have to do better than that if he ever decides to go back home and run for the county office.

Now it's an open question which will last longer the New Year's resolution or the so-called Christmas jewelry.

DRAMA OF OLD WESTERN DAYS AT CALIFORNIA

As his first production under the Paramount banner, Fred Thomson, world famous co-who star, presented "Jesse James" at the California Theatre last night. It marks a definite advance in the drama of Westerns.

No ordinary picture is "Jesse James." It is an historical drama of the most interesting variety. In addition to the importance attached to it because of its historical value, "Jesse James" also has all the speed and action of typical Fred Thomson picture and a fine love story enacted with consummate skill by Mr. Thomson and his leading woman, Gretchen Lane.

"Jesse James" opens during the Civil War. The famous outlaw is introduced as a member of a hard riding Confederate cavalry unit. While skimming in a creek he, his brother and Bob Ford catch sight of a nineteenth-century looking beauty—Zelda Minnie. Both Jesse and Bob are attracted to her. She, in spite of her coldness, becomes interested in Jesse.

Then, as the picture progresses we follow Jesse through such thrilling incidents as when he enters General Grant's tent in disguise and Zelda, a staunch Northerner, threatens to disclose his identity. Thereupon, he quickly disappears into a fireplace, emerges on the roof and suddenly reappears in a negro cabin, before beating bloodhounds across the river on Silver King, his marvelous gray horse.

Other film features include "Cool Off," a Christie comedy, "Bubbles of Geography" and current news events.

SOLE SCORES SELLING WEST COAST SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Assailing the Shipping Board's proposal to sell three cargo lines on the Pacific, Senator Oddie of Nevada, charged in the senate today that the sale would result in a shipping monopoly in the Pacific and imperil the national defense.

Characterizing the proposed sale as a "swindle," Oddie charged that the Dollar interests and Herbert Fleishacker, San Francisco banker, were linked with foreign interests in an attempt to get control of Pacific shipping.

The Nevada senator urged the adoption of the resolution by Senator Jones of Washington, to halt the proposed sale. He said that independent bidders are afraid to bid on the lines for fear the Dollar-Fleishacker interests will injure them.

"It is a crime for the Shipping Board to sell these ships as they plan today," declared Oddie. "It means much to American shipping and American national defense to stop this swindle that is about to be perpetrated. As a member of the Naval Affairs Committee, I protest against it."

Through a powerful lobby in Washington, Oddie charged that the Dollar-Fleishacker interests are seeking to have a clause in the specifications for the bids on the line that would "strangle competition on the Pacific coast."

Oddie declared that foreign interests are concerned to a "very large extent" in various shipping ventures in which Fleishacker has investments and that he is trying to get the entire business on the Pacific coast "into his own hands" through the Dollar lines and others.

"TWO ARABIAN KNIGHTS" NOW AT RICHMOND

Army veterans and their families and friends must not fail to see "Two Arabian Knights," which opened to gales of laughter at the Richmond theatre last night. Here is a film production on a lavish scale which makes the serious part of the war secondary, basing its plot almost exclusively on those humorous incidents that doughboys of '18 will remember so well. There must have been many of them in the house last night, judging by the frequent outbursts of laughter that punctuated the seemingly constant ripple of mirth.

The plot deals with two soldiers, a sergeant and private, who find themselves helpless in Arabia at the close of the war after they have escaped from a prison camp in Arab garb.

William Boyd's smile and twinkling eyes give the proper "devil, may care" attitude to the star, who plays his first comedy drama after a series of big dramatic successes. Mary Astor is beautiful as the Arab maiden and Louis Wolheim the stage star, keeps the audience constantly amused in his part of the hard-boiled sergeant.

The picture was made by Caddo Productions for United Artists. J. W. Considine, Jr., supervised it.

This great laugh producer will close its engagement tonight, and every picture goer and Legionnaire most of all, will find it worthwhile entertainment.

Other screen features include the third thrilling chapter of "The Crimson Flash" featuring Cullen Landis; and "Ko Ko The Convict," a cartoon comedy.

San Francisco—Kazdar Stadium will be enlarged to provide seating capacity of 60,000 at cost of about $250,000.

BRITISH RAID OF NAVY FIELD UNDER PROBE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Three important developments today marked the efforts of this government to halt the raid of the British-Owned Shell oil interests on the American naval reserve in California by which the British are obtaining for sale abroad one-third of all the oil and two-thirds of all the gasoline produced.

These are:

1. President Coolidge decided to submit the problem to the Federal oil conservation board immediately.

2. Secretary of State Kellogg prepared to take any diplomatic action necessary to protect American interests in the naval reserves as well as in the war between the American and British oil companies.

3. A special board of three Rear Admirals appointed by Secretary of the Navy Willbur planned to recommend immediate cancellation of the contracts with companies selling oil to the British.

The Federal Oil Conservation Board will deal primarily with the question of this country's valuable oil reserves going into the British controlled markets, while that country retains a corresponding amount of petroleum in the ground. The board is made up of the secretaries of interior, war, navy and commerce. Any recommendation the board makes will be immediately adopted. The members are expected to report at the meeting of the president and his cabinet tomorrow.

Secretary of State Kellogg is prepared to receive a protest from the British government on any action to restrain the hitherto free hand of the Shell interests in depleting the American reserves. He will insist, it is learned, that unless the British allow American operators to go into the British fields with the same free hand, the practice must be halted here. He is also keeping a watchful eye on the war between the Standard and the Shell interests in India and the new phase of it which has flared up in China where the Standard has extensive interests. The foreign rights of the American companies will be protected, it was

U. S. Scores Victory Over Mexico At Havana Meet

By GEORGE W. HINMAN

HAVANA, Jan. 27.—The United States today matched wits with the nimblest of U. S. adversaries at the Sixth Pan-American Conference and came out the victor.

It was a significant American triumph in the first real test of the Congress.

The American champion was stated. But possibly the most effective and prompt remedial action is that being considered by the navy. It was learned. This is the cancellation of contracts. There is some question of whether this can be done, but the judge advocate general of the special board is making a careful study of the problem. It is understood that it can be done as an emergency measure. In this event the navy will lose no time; it was learned, and in subsequent phases of any naval reserves a protective clause will be inserted.

former Secretary of State Hughes.

His two active opponents were Justice Salvador Urbina of the Mexican Supreme Court and Foreign Minister Gustavo Guerrero of Salvador recognized as two outstanding critics of American policy in the Caribbean region. Hughes won because, alone he knew just what he wanted. His two adversaries lost because they were not quite quick witted enough to stand and be counted at the same time. They were two minds with but a single thought, but that thought produced different physical reactions at critical points in the decision.

The issue involved was the comparatively uninteresting enough one as to whether the governing board of the Pan-American union should be composed largely of diplomats or of non-diplomats. Mexico advocated vigorously the "dis-diplomatization" of the board. Dr. Guerrero did his best to aid as Mexican colleague and, at times, even seemed to take the leadership in the struggle.

Behind the issue, was the desire of Justice Urbina and Dr. Guerrero to take control of the union away from the Latin-American diplomats accredited to Washington. The United States sought to maintain substantially the status quo with the modification that any government might if it desired substitute a representative for the diplomat.

Justice Urbina was frank in asserting with the greatest emphasis that Mexico was seeking to eliminate the diplomats. He said that diplomats are politicians with Nationalist desires while the members of the governing board should be non-politicians, with international aspirations. What he did not say, but what he and his fellow advocates had in mind, was the argument that the diplomatic corps at Washington is too susceptible to the desires of the United States.

The Mexican delegate found some support for his view, notably from Dr. Guerrero. Mr. Hughes restricted the other republics to representation on the board by their diplomats already accredited to Washington.

But there also was opposition, led by President Jesus Salazar of the Peruvian Chamber of Deputies. Dr. Salazar insisted on there being added to the Mexican proposal the positive statement that it did not prevent any republic from being represented by its diplomatic chief of mission at Washington. Such an addition, of course, contradicted Dr. Urbina's whole line of argument and specifically justified the maintenance of the governing board substantially as at present constituted.

There was much more talk. It was apparent that neither Justice Urbina nor Dr. Guerrero wished to have the Salazar modification added to the Mexican proposition. Then, Dr. Olaya Herrera of Colombia, as president of the first commission of the conference, put the question to a rising vote with the original proposal and the Peruvian modification joined.

Here, Justice Urbina apparently involuntarily followed the example set by the majority of his associates and he stood and was counted. But Dr. Guerrero remained seated during the counting of the "ayes," and then arose in opposition. Justice Urbina discovered immediately that his knees had played him false, and rose to protest.

Coat Latest Clue Of Lost Girl

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—Discovery of a coat bearing a New York label, and one similar to that worn by Frances St. John Smith, when she disappeared from Smith College, sent the police on a vigorous hunt for the girl here today.

The coat was turned over to the authorities by officials of Heston Associates. It was left in their offices following a meeting of some 600 girls, who answered an advertisement promising steady work.

Mrs. Lilly Hervig identified a photograph of the girl as resembling one of the girls who attended the meeting.

Casale RIGHT ON THE NOSE

The truth of the matter is the Greentree Stable is running far below par at J. A. Ferson Park this year. Winners have been scarce enough. And the going unquestionably will be tougher at Fair Grounds, where Jock, Chicago and Buddy Bauer and other stars are to perform. Adios, Peter, Peter, Saxon, Tip Top and All Callao hardly measure up to the class of Jock, Chicago, Buddy Bauer and Sea Rocket.

From his born Plute sends his own story exclusively to this column:

"I'm only a poor horse running for a living. I don't win many races but I run anyway. On occasions I feel the sting of the whip, but when a jockey deliberately hauls off and kicks me in the stomach I tell you a horse has a kick to register.

"Jockey Stevens was peevish because I lost the race. Hell, I've lost many races. I'm not as lucky as Man o' War. That's no excuse for whacking me in the ribs. He's setting a poor example for the other jockeys. After all, a horse may be dumb but he knows his oats.

"After the race Stevens was sore, and I did all the RUNNING. That's a hot one. He leaped off my hunchback and reached for the saddle. As I sidled away he whaled away with his boot and crashed a sizzler right in the stomach. It's a good thing I can take it. There's another horse would have yelled for his old man.

"It brings tears to my eyes to think that I should have been treated so cruelly. Oh! the meanness of it! Still, I shouldn't be so sentimental. When I think of those horses pushing milk wagons I sort of forget and say what's one kick in the stomach if you can take it? Maybe that kick will make me run faster next time out. You never can tell."

At New Orleans the boys used to say, "Play the Greentree horses and sit pretty." It made no difference what horses the Greentree Stable would start, the boys knew they'd get a ride for their dough and usually collect. This year, however, the boys are not so lucky with the Greentree horses.

Little Jockey Norman Stevens who is strutting his stuff at the Tia Juana merry-go-round, completely lost his noodle the other day. He ups and kicks a horse in the stomach and this healthy sock has set him back twenty-five fish. The name of the jockey is Plute, which is reported to be doing nicely.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—Annapolis and West Point will have to struggle through their football troubles without the mediation of President Coolidge.

All the president knows about the situation is what he has read in the newspapers, it was said.

El Cerrito Man Held As Slaughtering

Preliminary hearing of charges against Steve Lopoff of El Cerrito in Police Judge Tyrell's court in Oakland, on charges of hit-and-run driving caused him to be held for further hearing. Lopoff is charged with running down W. G. de Celle, 1586 LeRoy avenue, Berkeley, on the night of January 14, and failing to stop to render aid to the injured man.

Lopoff, it is reported, claims to have stopped and asked if the injured man was hurt, and then drove on. De Celle received minor cuts, and bruises as a result of the accident.

SO JACK'S GOING BLIND?

By Pete Williams

Vic Hanson, the Syracuse University athlete, is going South with the Yankees next month as an infield rookie but the improbability of Vic breaking into the Yankee infield isn't affecting him so much as several other rookie aspirants who will be making the same pilgrimage to St. Petersburg. Of course he'd rather make a major league team than be optioned to one of the minors, but Vic is out principally for professional experience and not big league glory.

In 1929 Hanson will take over the football, baseball and basketball coaching jobs at Syracuse, where he still remains the popular idol he was during his college days. While he won his letter in all of these sports and is notably proficient in all of them, the additional experience and knowledge he could pick up in the pro ranks he considers invaluable to his future as a coach.

A few weeks ago Vic showed himself to Garden basketball fans as a member of the Cleveland Rosenblooms, one of the leading teams in the American Basketball League, and he is now playing upstate with his own professional combination. When the time comes for him to take over the Orange basketball squad he will know those fine points of the game which one finds only among the professional players. And so it is with baseball. He has the experience and wants to get acquainted with the finer points of "inside baseball" which one does not encounter on the college diamond. He is fortunate in getting started under such an astute leader as Miller Huggins, who knows about as much baseball as any one in the game, and in being thrown in with players of the type of Ruth, Pennock, Hoyt, and Shocker. He will learn a lot from all of them, as well as Arthur Fletcher.

HAS DUCKED PRO FOOTBALL Hanson hasn't taken to pro football, though he has had several offers. Somehow, colleges throw upon a coach who has played in the professional game, though this dislike isn't carried to the other sports. It is particularly applied to football, and because he will be head coach at Syracuse next year Vic has avoided tying up with the professional gridgers.

Professional coaches for basketball and baseball are quite all right. Why this should be, I don't know, but the fact remains that such is the case. Yale would not have a pro football coach, yet they've had pro basketball and baseball coaches. Nat Holman, City College basketball coach, is one of the country's outstanding pro players. All of the big Eastern colleges have former big league stars as baseball coaches.

Hanson is a second baseman, and a good one, too, according to those who have watched him play. Still he would have to look like Eddie Collins at his best to work his way in ahead of Lazzari or Jimmy Reese, who will be along in the spring of 1929. He knows that now, and is going along with the team just for the

Ed Sullivan's SPORT WHIRL

BLACK GOLD WAS GONE TO THE END The Indians on the Oklahoma reservations who were made fabulously rich by the discovery of oil on their lands have an affectionate nickname for the thick fluid that gushes out of the wells. The Indians call it black gold.

So it was fitting that when Mrs. Hoots, an Indian widow, found that her husband had left one horse in his stable which possessed amazing speed, she should name the little black flyer after the oil that had made her husband a millionaire. She named the little black horse Black Gold.

Undoubtedly, there was the blood of a thoroughbred in the little Indian horse. Undoubtedly, too, there was the staying powers of the game little mustangs of the Western plains, for Black Gold's family tree had been developed on the prairies. Some said that a thoroughbred and the leader of a band of wild horses had mated to produce him.

Every Indian in the West had a bet down on Black Gold when he met the cream of the country's thoroughbreds at Churchill Downs, Kentucky, in the 1924 running of the classic Kentucky Derby.

Black Gold, the little horse owned by an Indian squaw, won by a nose, in a finish that sent pulses leaping and unloosed vocal thunder to the blue skies of Kentucky.

The gameness of the little black horse was the deciding factor in the sprint through the stretch. The blend of sturdy mustang and lordly thoroughbred had produced, above all else, rare gameness. And, as Black Gold, the little black horse, died at New Orleans, you still get a vision of his gameness, from the United Press dispatch:

"Black Gold got up, one leg dangling and tried to go with them. He fell and tried again. The last time he failed to get up. A few minutes later he was shot."

CHICAGOAN TOUTED HIM IN MIAMI HOTEL I have always had sort of a proprietary interest in Black Gold, and the death of the little black racer is not an entirely impersonal story.

Five years ago, in Miami, I was vacationing and keeping my typewriter in condition by banging out a daily story for a Miami Beach paper.

At the hotel where I was stopping I ran into a little Jewish gambler from Chicago. He tipped me off to a horse that couldn't possibly lose the Kentucky Derby. I asked him the nag's name, and he had forgotten it.

"You're touting a pony and you don't even know his name," I protested. "He must be a world beater."

But the little Chicagoan got the name for me. It was Black Gold. I looked him up in the winter book, and he was quoted at 40 to 1. That price discouraged any betting interest. Those 40 to 1 shots generally finish in fourth place.

I had forgotten all about Black Gold until news slowed up and I didn't have any red-hot sporting dope to hand out to the bored readers of Miami Beach.

In lieu of anything else I did a column on the Kentucky Derby, in which I picked Black Gold to win. At least I'd be different, if not accurate. And the little fellow from Chicago had told me Black Gold was a cinch to win.

BLACK GOLD FULFILLED FREAK PREDICTION A few weeks later Black Gold won the New Orleans Derby. I was back North when Black Gold won the Kentucky Derby, and if the residents of Miami Beach were amazed at my prediction at least they had nothing on me. I was stunned.

So it was that I always followed the career of Black Gold with unusually keen interest, and his death seemed to be a personal shock. When the news of his death came in I was just winding up my affairs at the office preparatory to sailing for a vacation in Miami, the first I had spent there since 1923, the year I picked Black Gold to win because I didn't have anything else to write.

I had never seen the little black horse run, but whenever Michael W. Casale wrote of him I read the racing column with more than usual interest.

For Black Gold was my particular entry, and even in a field of Man o' War, Morvich, Zev and Exterminator I would have placed a bet on Black Gold.

I like them game, and the United Press tells how Black Gold got up, ONE LEG DANGLING, and tried to follow the field that swept past.

Never before has a Chinese Herbalist written a book in English. The revised edition of "Herb Lore," just off the press, contains numerous articles on Chinese Herbs Remedies, Theories and Methods of Treating Various Ailments, all written by Fong Wan himself. The contents of this book are very different from those of books composed by advertising agencies or by employed authors. The herbalists who publish such books are not even able to read what the books contain.

Fong Wan's book is designed to set forth clearly the nature and preparation of herbs, and to show how these wonderful gifts of Mother Nature are used, in accordance with the ancient Chinese theories, to combat disease in its various forms. The book also contains approximately 200 testimonials, given chiefly by East Bay people who have been freed from suffering by drinking the Fong Wan Herbs.

One copy may be obtained free by each family if called for at the Fong Wan Office, or a copy will be mailed to any address upon request and receipt of 10 cents in stamps.

COOLIDGE TO REVIVAL TALK OPPOSE JONES FILLS CHURCH BILL FOR SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—An informal but positive announcement that President Coolidge will veto the Jones bill for upbuilding of the government merchant marine came from the White House today.

President Coolidge, it was made known, determinedly opposed to two of the strongest sections of the bill, namely:

1. The proposed appropriation of several hundred million dollars for construction of new ships to replace the government-owned freighters and liners which are becoming obsolete.

2. The section which provides that government-owned ships can be sold or leased to private operators only by unanimous consent of all the United States shipping board commissioners.

President Coolidge, it was made known, believes that the latter provision would make one man a majority of the board. He has been informed that a single member of the present board—presumably Admiral Benson—has voted consistently against every proposed lease or sale of government lines and ships to private operators.

Congress will probably pass the Jones marine bill regardless of any warning of a veto by the White House. There is understood to be among the members of congress a prevailing opinion that private operators will not take over the ships upon reasonable terms and, rather than permit American commerce to be left to the mercy of foreign steamship agencies, Uncle Sam must maintain his own trade fleets.

President Coolidge, it is known, believes that the government can not operate the marine efficiently because government was not created to make profit. He is anxious to sell or lease all the ships with the provision that the purchasers shall keep them in trade routes for at least five years and that they shall always fly the American flag.

Extra chairs were needed last night to seat the crowd which came to hear Rev. George W. Forman's revival sermon. There was some lively community singing and George Glineberg sang a solo "Ninety and Nine" accompanied by Mrs. Henrietta Sollars at the piano. Two numbers were voices given by a male chorus of seven, under the leadership of A. S. Mackay.

The subject of Forman's sermon was "Pilate's question 'What Shall I Do with Jesus, Which Is Called the Christ?'" There were three divisions to the question. First, it was a personal question. Second, it was a troublesome question. Third, it was an imperative question. "It was a personal question because no one could answer it except Pilate himself," he declared. "It was a troublesome question because Pilate must choose between his conscience and popular opinion. It was imperative because it had to be answered right then. The same questions prevail today with every individual. Questions arise where one must choose his course—whether he shall follow his conscience and be unpopular or gain temporary praise by acceding to certain demands. The answer to the question is found in the new testament 'Believe in Jesus, receive Jesus, and abide in him.'"

The close of the services Rev. Forman sang a solo "What shall I do with Jesus?"

There will be no services at the Community Methodist church tonight but Sunday morning at 11 o'clock a sermon will be delivered by Dr. S. H. Werlein of San Francisco.

Sunday evening Rev. Forman will conduct a revival service at the church, and has chosen as his topic "Weighed and Found Wanting," taken from the text "Thou art weighed in the balances of God and art found wanting." Special numbers will be sung by a quartet consisting of Mrs. Henrietta Sollars, Mrs. C. J. Seymour, George Glineberg and Rev. George W. Forman.

"Sowing and Reaping" was the timely topic chosen by Rev. Forman for his sermon, Thursday night. It was taken from the text "Be not deceived. God is not mocked—or, whatever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." "This," said Rev. Forman, "is a apt to be mixed with much that is misleading." Rev. Forman used as illustrations the three facts suggested by the text. First, the sower expects to reap; second, the sower expects to reap what he sows; third, the sower expects to reap a multiplied harvest.

"These facts hold true in the spiritual realm as well as in the physical realm," he declared. At the close of the sermon Rev. Forman sang a solo, "You Will Reap Whatsoever You Sow."

Standard Oil Calls For Bids On Tanker

Standard Oil of California will accept at its San Francisco office Monday bids for a new 13,000-ton electrically driven, Diesel engine tanker. Every shipbuilding concern in the country has been invited to bid on the job. Machinery for the tanker is already possessed by the company, as it was bought from the government to be installed in their tanker District of Columbia, but could not be used for the purpose for which it was purchased. At present the company has a 15,000-ton tanker under construction in Kiel, Germany.

Sweedish Tourist Seeking Countrymen Lectures Here

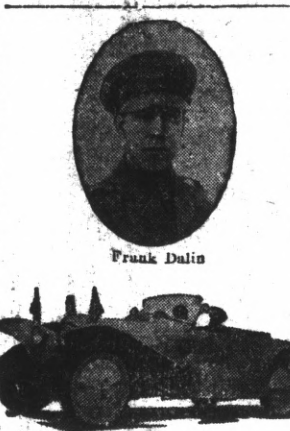

Bearing greetings from natives section of the country, is a $10.000 Avions-Voisin of French design and manufacture. It is an underslung, four-cylinder roadster with disc wheels and four-wheel brakes, powered with an 80-horse power aeroplane motor capable of attaining a speed of 115 miles per hour. The pair arrived from Sweden last June 6.

Before coming to America, Dalin spent nine months traveling throughout the Scandinavian countries obtaining the names of those who are sought in America. During their travels he took eight reels of moving pictures, including aeroplane views. Pictures of peasant folk and their activities will be shown also the royalty and life throughout the entire country.

At the entertainment, Dalin will also read a list of names of Swedish people in Minnesota, whom relatives in Sweden have lost trace of and are endeavoring to locate. He stated the following in regard to the list of the missing: "We estimate that about one-third of those missing are dead, many of them in the World War. Others have simply neglected to write their relatives or their letters have gone astray and they have ceased correspondence."

Dalin is financing his own search for these persons by delivering lectures among the Swedish people and presenting motion pictures of Sweden and the sale of an interesting book he has written.

HICKMAN CASE BEGINS MONDAY IN L. A. COURT

two days of grueling repetition and questioning of witnesses it seemed that a jury had been accepted at last, just in time to permit the real business of the trial to begin on Monday morning. But then District Attorney said the state desired to reserve until Monday its decision whether to exercise additional challenges.

Then attorneys Jerome Walsh and Richard Cantillon both were on their feet declaring the state had waived its right and that the jury stood complete.

For several minutes arguments were passed with more energy that counsel on either side had displayed hitherto.

"We'll argue it out on Monday morning," District Attorney Hayes stated. And the Hickman case was adjourned over the week-end.

"The state declined to exercise a challenge by the court," Walsh said afterword. "We maintain that the state has waived its rights to challenge and the jury is complete."

Sixteen of its 20 peremptories had been exercised by the defense. The state had challenged only four times.
